After laying flowers and offering incense, the lecturers, staff and students toured the stilt house, a model built to a 1:1 scale of President Ho Chi Minh's stilt house in Hanoi, where the younger generations of the DTU School of Medicine and Pharmacy listened to moving stories about the daily life and revolutionary career of President Ho Chi Minh.

Ho Binh Phuong, a first - year student of General Practitioner, said: “This is my first time participating in the flower offering ceremony, so I was very nervous. When I heard Uncle Ho's voice reading the Declaration of Independence, proclaiming the birth of Vietnam, I felt both emotional and proud, and I was happy to be a Vietnamese citizen.

Ten years ago, I had the chance to visit Uncle Ho's Mausoleum in Hanoi, and today, visiting Uncle Ho's stilt house with my teachers and friends, I felt like I was revisiting the days when I visited the Mausoleum in the capital. I promised to strive to join the ranks of the Party to become a citizen for the country.”
