

VN, US universities boost training cooperation

The Penn State University (PSU) of the US will transfer textbooks of 24 advanced subjects in its original training programme on business administration and accounting to the Da Nang-based Duy Tan University (DTU).

Under a cooperative agreement signed between the two universities on January 17, the PSU will help train over 100 lecturers from the DTU so that they can begin teaching the subjects later this year.

From the 2010-2011 school year, the PSU will send its lecturers to help the DTU ensure teaching quality. Students who attend the PSU programme at the DTU will receive from 18 to 24 certificates of finishing PSU subjects and can go on to study at the PSU.

According to DTU Rector Le Cong Co, besides the full PSU programme, six out of the 24 PSU subjects will be integrated in the curriculum at the Business Administration, Accounting and Tourism.

Prof. Dr. Curtis E. Porter, Rector of the PSU, said he hoped this programme will help improve the image and international prestige of both universities.

Since 2007, the DTU has also cooperated with the US 's Carnegie Mellon and Seattle Pacific Universities in training programmes on software technology, information system and advanced business administration.
